

Survivor Pool Week 5

brought to you by

Good Monday morning {{ contact.DB }},

As forecasted, week 5 truly was a coin toss for win prediction... even the best players 'took one down the middle'. At nearly a 50% loss rate (13 of 27) we say 'bye bye' as 8 more take their final whiff. Exactly half the field remain standing with 19 players going into Week 6.

BREAKING NEWS: leader @nvscott7 suffered his first loss when the Giants failed to take down the home Pirates 3-4. Congrats on a good streak. He still maintains a slight 1 run advantage (29) over 2nd place @Shooter (28).

Dog of the week

Again the Jays disappoint big time Friday night at home vs the Yanks. Not only did they lose but really really badly earning only 3 runs for the two Hawks that choose the game. 12-3 Bronx Bombers.

Usain Bolt pick

Talk about making up some ground on the pack! The Cardinals 11-2 win over the Red Sox really pumped up the tires for @akopp1 who more than doubled his run total. Well done as the lone player who saw this coming!

Sure thing

If there was a smart pick, a lock, there was merit in looking at this Sunday matchup for the Astros. Sure enough Altuve and gang brought home the bacon and rewarded 9 players with a win.
